At this point the thoughtful Mrs. Stearns, with a beautiful desire to make it pleasant for her husband, put her head in the door and said: "George are you trying to murder that poor ling be quiet you will kill me." George' reply was lost in the wild screams of the infant. But he determined on a more vigorous policy. He sat her up straight on his knee, shook his finger at her solemnly, and then, as he strok ed her forehead and eyes, he said in a deep bass voice: "Go to sleep, Lucy; go to sleep at once." The child stopped crying instantly, winked a few tin and sank into his arms fast asleep.

Giving her into charge of the nurse Mr. Stearns put on another shirt and ie, adjusted court-plaster on his nose, read the evening paper, and after wait ing a short time Mrs. Stearns was ready and together they went to the heatre, arriving while the second act was yet young. Light quality wools show the same con spicuous features that have been noticeable in winter goods. Extremely bold plaids are frequent, while circular or oval spots have grown even larger nor does the breath of spring hinder a presentation of fleecy or astrakhan weavings, which appear not only on woolens but on semi transparent fabries such as grenadines. Bourette fleckings likewise contribute to a stylish roughness and but that colors are refined and often indistinct, the effects would be too pronounced even for fashionable endurance. Bright plaids are seen, but here the surfaces are smooth although the size of the pattern may be large.
